BRING BACK THE MUSIC.

THE EVENING WORLD repeats its cry-"Bring back the street music." Nobody but fidgety folks and hypochondriacs was worried by it. It gave pleasure to more people than did ever THEODORE THOMAS OF Herr SEIDL, and at an infinitely smaller cost.

When you come to think of it the street music is an educator, and a refining influence in the communities where it is ground out. There is a barrel organ now and then which had birth in some Devonian age or other, and which is a reproach to music and a wheezy insult to decency. But for the most part the street organs and pianos make good music. They are well tuned, well timed and generally well turned. Their repertories are not all of the vulgar either.

If it were not for the street organs how in the world would the little east-side boy have learned to whistle " Il Trovatore?" Keep the street-organist away and what is to become of all the musical talent latent in the souls of the poor, and which needs only a little cultivation?

Bring back the street music for those who can't afford seats at the Metropolitan Opera-

CALLED TO ACCOUNT.

JOHN WANAMAKER-" Honest John" -- in "treading the primrose path" of Postmaster. Generalship, has trodden on something tharp. Despite a promise made to Senator WADE HAMPTON that he would do nothing of the sort, he cut short the term of WADE HAMPTON GIBBES, Postmaster at Columbia, S. C.

The open letter in which Senator Hampton turns "Honest Joun" over is a delightful demonstration of how a man may be called a liar without the use of barsh words. But best of all is the parting injunction, that the Postmaster-General lecture to his Philadelphia Sunday-school upon the touching story of Ananias and Sapphina. Oh, dear old Senator, are you not easting pearls before Republicans? Is not all your chivalrous resentment and fine irony wasted? Will it prevent WANAMAKER from "turning again and rending" another Democrat? Hardly. No more than, it seems, his promise would.

You seem to have missed the keynote of this Administration. Promises are repudiated currency with it: from those made in the Chicago platform, so that upon which your namesake based hope of holding the Columbis Post-Office.

It is the story of ELISHA, and not of ANA-NIAS-the lesson of expediency, and not of retribution-that the truly good WANAMAKER and all the rest of the churchly office-mongers have conned carefully.

Don't mind 'em. GIVE CREDIT.

It is a good time to speak well of the Police their meeting vesterday the missioners dismissed three policemen from the force for too free use of the club and pistol. This action will go far towards correcting a prevalent belief that the Board is an organization for the shielding and vindication of ruffians in their work of killing and maining an unoffending populace.

There are a good many brutal policemen. Frequent clubbings show that bluecoats are far too handy with the locust, but there's a consolation in knowing that a man cannot give free sein to his brutality and continue to disgrace the police uniform.

Credit where credit is due.

Six Cornell students were laid up in their football game with Yale last Saturday. This state of hemorrhage, sprain and broken bones seems, from the much talk at Ithaca. to possess the charm of novelty for Western collegians. It is only in the older college balls of the cultured East that bruising is brought to a fine art and the black eye and dislocated limb are considered normal.

It happened that Supt. MURRAY had some stenographers at Cooper Union the other night to take down the inflammatory utterances of Mr. Seegius Analichist Schevitch. The reports will be presented to the District-Attorney with a view to having the Anarchist muzzled.

Now, Sergius, how much "pull" have you?

Sepator Hearst has offered $250,(00) for Bunol, not because he wants her so badly, but just to keep the fleet filly in California. He is behindhand. If Senator HEARST's notions in the matter of horse-buying and

The Russian military authorities are testing a new rifle. Goodness! what a lot of training will have been wasted if this little European "scrap" doesn't take place.

The Tentonic and City of New York are ready for another tearing race. This ocean steamship racing will popularize accident insurance tickets.

Senator Evants sails to-day from London. Will the fishes, great and small, rise up out of the sea and sing to him-" Where did-?"

The steampost hands at Glasgow have struck. Verily, the labor agitator's tongue reaches to the uttermost parts of the earth. Will WANAMAKER fight?

Start on Another Race.

Them Slow Up.

More Fog and a Rainstorm Predicted-Delays at the Ferries.

Another and denser fog hung over New York and its enrrounding waters this morning, and t was with great difficulty that the pilots guided their craft without mishaps.

The worst of the fog was seen down the bay.

All yessels coming in and going out, as well as the Staten Island ferry-boats, crept along at a very slow rate of speed, and residents of Staten Island who came up to this city to transact business were greatly delayed.

In spite of the fog. however, the Inman line steamship City of New York and the Teutonic, of the White Star line, started on another race across the ocean.

Both vessels left their piers at the foot of Christopher street within a quarter of an hour of each other. The City of New York got away at 8.50 and the White Star vessel at 9.05.

Both steamships carried a large number of passengers. Among those on the City of New York were Manager Alexander Comstock, of the Academy of Music; Ted Marks and Mrs. Charles Woodbayer. The Teutonic carried Sir Lyon Playfair, Lady

The Tentonic carried Sir Lyon Playfair. Lady Playfair. Countess of Schrewslour. F. A. Kursheedt, of the Finance Committee of the World's Fair, and A. Stavely Hill, M. P.

The Tentonic beat her competitor over on their last trip between Queenstown and this nort by thirty-eight minutes.

The present trip will no doubt be as exciting as the last one. The Tentonic will attempt to hold her lead, while the Cary of New York will undoubtedly try to regain her lost honors.

As the two vessels approached Staten Island they were compelled to slow down, as the fog became so denot that it was difficult to pick their way along.

way along. The City of New York proceeded so slowly that passengers on the Staten Island ferryboats thought she had come to anchor. Sergt Dunn, of the Signal Service, says that the fog will continue until a cold snap strikes

SESSIONS JUDGE VOTES.

Fitzgerald's and Gildersleeve's Representatives Watching the Canvass.

The work of canvassing the votes at the recent election went wearily on in the Aldermanic Council Chamber to-day.

The closest vote being that for Judge of the Court of General Sessions, representatives of both Judge tilldersleeve and Mr. Fitzgerald were on hand, keeping close watch on the count.

Ex-Adderman U Tuver, of the Twenty-first District, represented the former, and ex-Assistant Corporation Counsel Wm. L. Turner. Civil Justice Sampson Lachman and Major Duffy, of the Sixty-ninth Hegiment, looked after Mr. Fitzgerald's interests.

Mrs. Harrison keeps three scrap-books, in which she rastes all the newspaper references to the Har-rison, Scott and McKee families. An entire page is devoted to Baby Benjamin, in which poets, editors, paragraphers and correspondents extol his infantile charms. These and the printed references to the President cost Mrs. Harrison #100 every month, a Broadway syndicate of newspaper clippings supplyins her. It is rumered that Mrs. Harrison, with the aid of her eister, Mrs. Scott Lord, and her daughter, Mrs. McKee, will publish a book under the title of "Our Residence in the White House." The favorite rough-and-ready dress for a little girl is made of a woollen plaid, with the blocks on the bias. The skirt is full and finished with a deep hem. For the bodies, a jersey matching one of the colors is selected and held in place by a girdle of exidused silver of very light weight. The Dutch waist made over a gamp of tucked musiin is always pretty and very becoming to the childish face, but it is a waist that doctors oppose on account of the extreme changes of climate.

Fancy chemisettes are worn with all manner of house dresses and are frequently douned as a confec-tion to a matinee or lox tollet. The newest are of ribbed silk, like Lyons, ottoman or sicilicane. They are cut very long, turned under to beg at the waist and are run with artistically placed ribbons.

Love, Tact and Intelligence.

My recipe for keeping a husband at home i ove, true and pure. Combined with tact and ntelligence it will adjust all things as they ought to be. I have been married fifteen years and my husband has not been out one evening unless I have been with him, and yet I do not spare him the liftle things that happen through the day. I tell them to him, whether of trouble r pleasure, expecting and always receiving love nd sympathy. Happy Wife. and sympathy.

For All Kinds of Men.

To the Printer . For one kind of man express a wish to have nim go out, and you may be sure he'll never go f he thinks you really mean it. For another kind of man, cry.

For a third, insist upon going with him. For another, threaten to send for your mother

A Real Housewife's Recipe.

Take a heart heaping full of love; sift into it some good sense; make a hole of self-forgetfulness in the middle. Let some sympathetic thoughts simmer down into cheerful words: pour these in; add right proportion of happiness to raise or make it light.

Thoroughly mix ingredients, beat out all imps of carelessiess and remove all specks or impurities to at can be found.

Cover with truth, set to raise in an atmosphere of warm affection,

when this heart of love is sufficiently elevated and has been moistened by milk of human kindness, then add confidence, patience, contentment, good nature or any other virtues pleasing

Any great excitement or fatigue, such as taking his testimony, might do him immediate and serious injury and should not be allowed.
After the reports were submitted Col. Fellows said:
"The certificates received by your Honor precludes any idea of Judge Monell's appearance in court as a witness, though the people are all ready to go on with the other cases.

Judge Russell answered Col. Fellows in a short speech, during which his eres filled with tears.

"Judge Monell is the principal witness," said he, "and is a most necessary and vital witness.

"I have aid repeatedly to Col. Fellows that his condition was most serious, and aithough he was anxious to go before the Grand Jury his sickness was such that he cound not.

"Yes: Judge Monell is a very sick man and his illness has been aggravated by stories in the newspapers, one of which was beaded 'Ohyes, Monell is sick, but he can sit up and smoke,"—(tears)—and nearly kil ed him.

Col. Fellows said he was not pressing the case with undue haste. He should have affidavity concerning Monell in order to preserve on record. record.

He had too high an opinion of Judge Russell to suspect him of dishonesty. This case was not being hirried along with unduc inste, but as two of the parties were public officials, it should be tried as speedily as possible, in order that if they were innocent all suspicion should be removed.

James O'Rourke testified that on the night of the murder he saw Blauvelt in Lanigan's saloon at 67 James street, and helped to bind up Blauvolt's fingers, which were cut and bleeding.

Blauvelt said Duggan had cut him with Blauvelt said Duggan had consider sug.

On the way home Blauvelt reached the alleyway at 72 Oliver street leading to Mrs. Campbell's house. Duggan jumped out and the two men clinched.

They rolled down an embankment and witness heard two pistol shots.

William Bradley testified that on one occasion, while returning from Mark Langan's saloon to Mrs. Campbell's, Blauvelt remarked to him.

ECHOES FROM ELECTION.

A Gentleman Attributes His Trouble to

Campalgu Nights. "Yes, I will be giad to talk with you, and you are quite welcome to use my photograph," said Mr. P. W. Miller, when the writer called upon him at his home at 514 West 55th st.

"It was during the election campaign of 1888," Mr. Miller continued. "I took considerable interest in polities and was out nights a good deal. I suppose to was in this way that I caught cold. I had had more or less trouble with my head and throat before, and some way, in spite of everything I could take, I couldn't entirely shake off this cold. Others followed. In fact, a seemed as if I would take cold without any cause at all. My head would feel all stuffed up. My eyes would got dim and weak. There would be ringing and buzzing noises in my cars and my throat would trouble me con

MR. F. W. MILLER.

"After a time a dull, drowsy headache came on. B was almost continual. There would be a heavy, op-pressed seeling in my forchead over the eyes and across the bridge of my noss. I lost steadily in weight and strength. "The trouble seemed to have got a confirmed hold on me and affected me all over. I was steadily growing weaker, losing m strength and ambition. I would get nervous and low-spirited without any apparent cause.

"But what really alarmed me more than anything else was the continued backing cough and the night sweats that came on within the last two or three years. I changed physicians two or three times, but one didn't seem to help me any more than snother. I tried all sorts of doctors and all the medicines and remedies tha were recommended to me, but all they could afford me was a little temporary rollef, and I could see that, take it altogether, I was steadily losing ground. "The continual expecteration, hawking and raising grew more disagreeable as the trouble extended. The pains in the chost, side and shoulders made me feel as if I had done a hard day's work all the while. My friend feared that I would have lung trouble. A Lexington Avenue Gentleman Makes an Interesting Statement, Mr. John Swenarton, well known in New York as a pholesale milk dealer, was found by the writer at his home at 518 Lexington ave. " It has been at least eight years," he said in reply to question, "that my trouble has been a source of posttive annoyance and discomfort to me, and I guess nearly that time that I could see that it was affecting my general health. Bronchial catarrh I believe it was they called it. It seemed to begin with my head and nose being stopped up, a slight cough and a raising of uons from my throat.

"At that time," Mr. Ewenarton continued, "I was all the while catching cold, and sometimes I have at tributed the origin of my trouble to colds in the head. There would be a continual dropping back of mucus roin my head into my threat. Mr eyes would get weak and watery; I was all the time hawking and hemming and raising; my nostrils would either be clogged up, first on one side and then on the other, or elsether would discharge freely.

"The continual dropping back of secretions seemed to affect my stomach. My appetite failed me. What I did eat did not seem to agree with me. There would be a dull, heavy feeling and sometimes nauses in my stom a dult, heavy feeling and sometimes nausea in my swearch after eating.

"Sharp, shooting pains would take me in the chest running through to the shoulder blades. The cough became constant and at times severe. I lost in feeling strength. I was advised some time ago to go and see

Drs. Copeland & Blair and finally went, and finding their charges reasonable placed myself under their cars.

"In a very short time there was a marked improvement in my case. The head and neso became clear, and I can hardly explain to you what a relief that was. The cough coased. The pains in the chest and shealders passed away entirely. The appetite improved steadily. I sleep soundly and well now and do not have that stred, unrested feeling that I used to have when I would get up in the morning.
